Artist Winston Torr created a project in honor of Vogue Ukraine

AUGUST 11, 2015

At the heart of a new art project the artist Winston Torr - Photographer collaboration Arcin Sagdic and stylist Olga Yanul for Vogue Ukraine.

Inspired by the shooting, "Giselle", where the model Ola Roudnitska Posing in the image of a ballerina, the artist gave vent to imagination, applying thick layers of paint on top of her portrait. Liberally applied paint to the canvas as the chaotic and follow the contours of the face create the effect of a mask. The idea of such an illusion - to show that all imperfect in the world makes it even more attractive. Winston admits that his main source of inspiration - the human form: "All people are different - the structure of the face, body shape, hair and eye color. They may be similar, but not identical - it is excellent. It is a mistake to believe that I paint the human body, in fact - I remove his personality. I put in the work pieces of his soul, who are trying to escape, but can not, as enshrined in the paintings."

Winston Torr was born in Toronto and grew up in Sino-American family in Los Angeles. He graduated from California State Polytechnic University in Pomona, a bachelor's degree in fine arts. Now Torr lives and works between Berlin and Los Angeles. His work is represented in the largest auction house "Sotheby's" in the Vienna Museum of Art Deutsche Bank Kunsthalle in Berlin, the Art Institute of Siena Art Institute of Siena, Mercedes Benz Gallery in Ravensburg. Winston took part in a charity auction of art such as Glaad in New York and Steve Chase Humanitarian Awards in Palm Springs (CA).
